CHINUCH BETH HEMAZENETH.

street, between Sixth avenue and Broadway, to divine worship yesterday afternoon, with appro-priate ceremonies. This congregation was founded in 1846 by a number of Israelites formerly connected with the Temple B'nai Jeshurun, and met for worship in Franklin street, near Broadway. They subsequently acquired a syna-gogue in Wooster street, and in 1864 they moved to the upper floor of the building cov-ering the block from Thirty-fifth to Thirty-sixth streets, between Sixth avenue and Broadway. They a temple which may be classed as among the hand-somest religious edifices in the city. It is built on litorium proper is seventy-five feet square, the t being occupied by four large schoolrooms and the trustees' room and apartments for the shamaor sexton. The style of architecture is Moorish, the ornamental walls being of Newark freethe ornamental walls being of Newark freestone, Bet off beautifully by Dorchester freestone. There are two towers at the corners of the main front wall and the whole is crowned by a large cupola or dome, on which, over a gilt ball, the "Shield of David" is borne high aloft. The interior is full of rich ornamentation, which strikes the eye favorably on account of its polychromatic character. The prevailing colors are built blue and gold. At the rear is the "ark," covered by heavy crimson silk curtains, on the architrave of which is inscribed in Hebrew characters the motto, "Know Before Whom Thou Standest," and over this are the two tablets containing the Ten Commandments. The corner stone of the building was laid in April, 1868, and it has just now been completed, though some of the outside ornaments are not yet finished. Rev. Dr. S. M. Isanes has been the Rabbi of this congregation stace its foundation and the dedicatory services were conducted under its direction. He and his congregation adhere strenously to the old rites of Judaism and belong to the orthodox wing of the faith, which he did not he strate yesterday in his sermon to declare most emphatically.

The entire building was crowded to its utmost phatically.

The entire building was crowded to its utmost capacity. Nearly all the Jewish rabbis in the city were present, and even a number of Protestant clergymen could be noticed, prominical among whom was Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby, of Fourth avenue Presbyterian church. There was a very large choir present, consisting of forty-two voices, members of the congregation, and thirty-five instrumental performers, the latter, all members of the Philharmonic Society, volunteering, all being under the leadership of Professor Edward Woolf, who composed the music expressly for this occasion. The ceremonles commenced by the presentation of the keys of the synagogue to the president of the congregation, Mr. Barnet L. Solomon, by Mr. Leopold Cohn, on behalf of the building committee, who old made appropriate speeches. An opening three times at the door, singing, "open unto us the Gates of Righteousness," &c. The president opened the doors, and the procession, led by the Rabol and the chasan, marched under the canopy into the church and up to the ark, bearing fourteen Thoras, or the sacred scrells, on which are written the five books of Mises. Then came the "seven circuits," or the procession with the Thoras seven times around the church, while a number of psalms were sung by the choir, after which the Thoras were deposited in the Ark, where the "perpetual lamp" had been lighted by Mr. Siegmund and T. Meyer, treasurer. After a very impressive prayer free, Dr. Isaacs delivered the sermon, during which the reverend gentieman was several times to overcome by his own emotions that tears hushed his voice. Remarkante was his declaration that Judaism shall not be deprived of its record of antiquity; that no sacrilegious hand shall be suffered. Judaism shall not be deprived of its record of antiquity; that no sacrilegious hand shall be suffered to touch it, nor the smallest inroad be made, nor any changes, to comply with the so-called spirit of the times, except only with the express consent of the learned and wise Rabbis of the faith, not here only, but in Europe and all over the world. After the sermon came a solemn prayer for the governments—national, State and city—a hymn, and then the benediction closed the services.
